

Fig. 2 Site plan of Spong Hill cemetery, from Hills, Penn and Rickett (1984, fig. 111). (Original illustration by Kenneth Penn, copyright: Norfolk Historic Environment, Norfolk Museums & Archaeology Service)

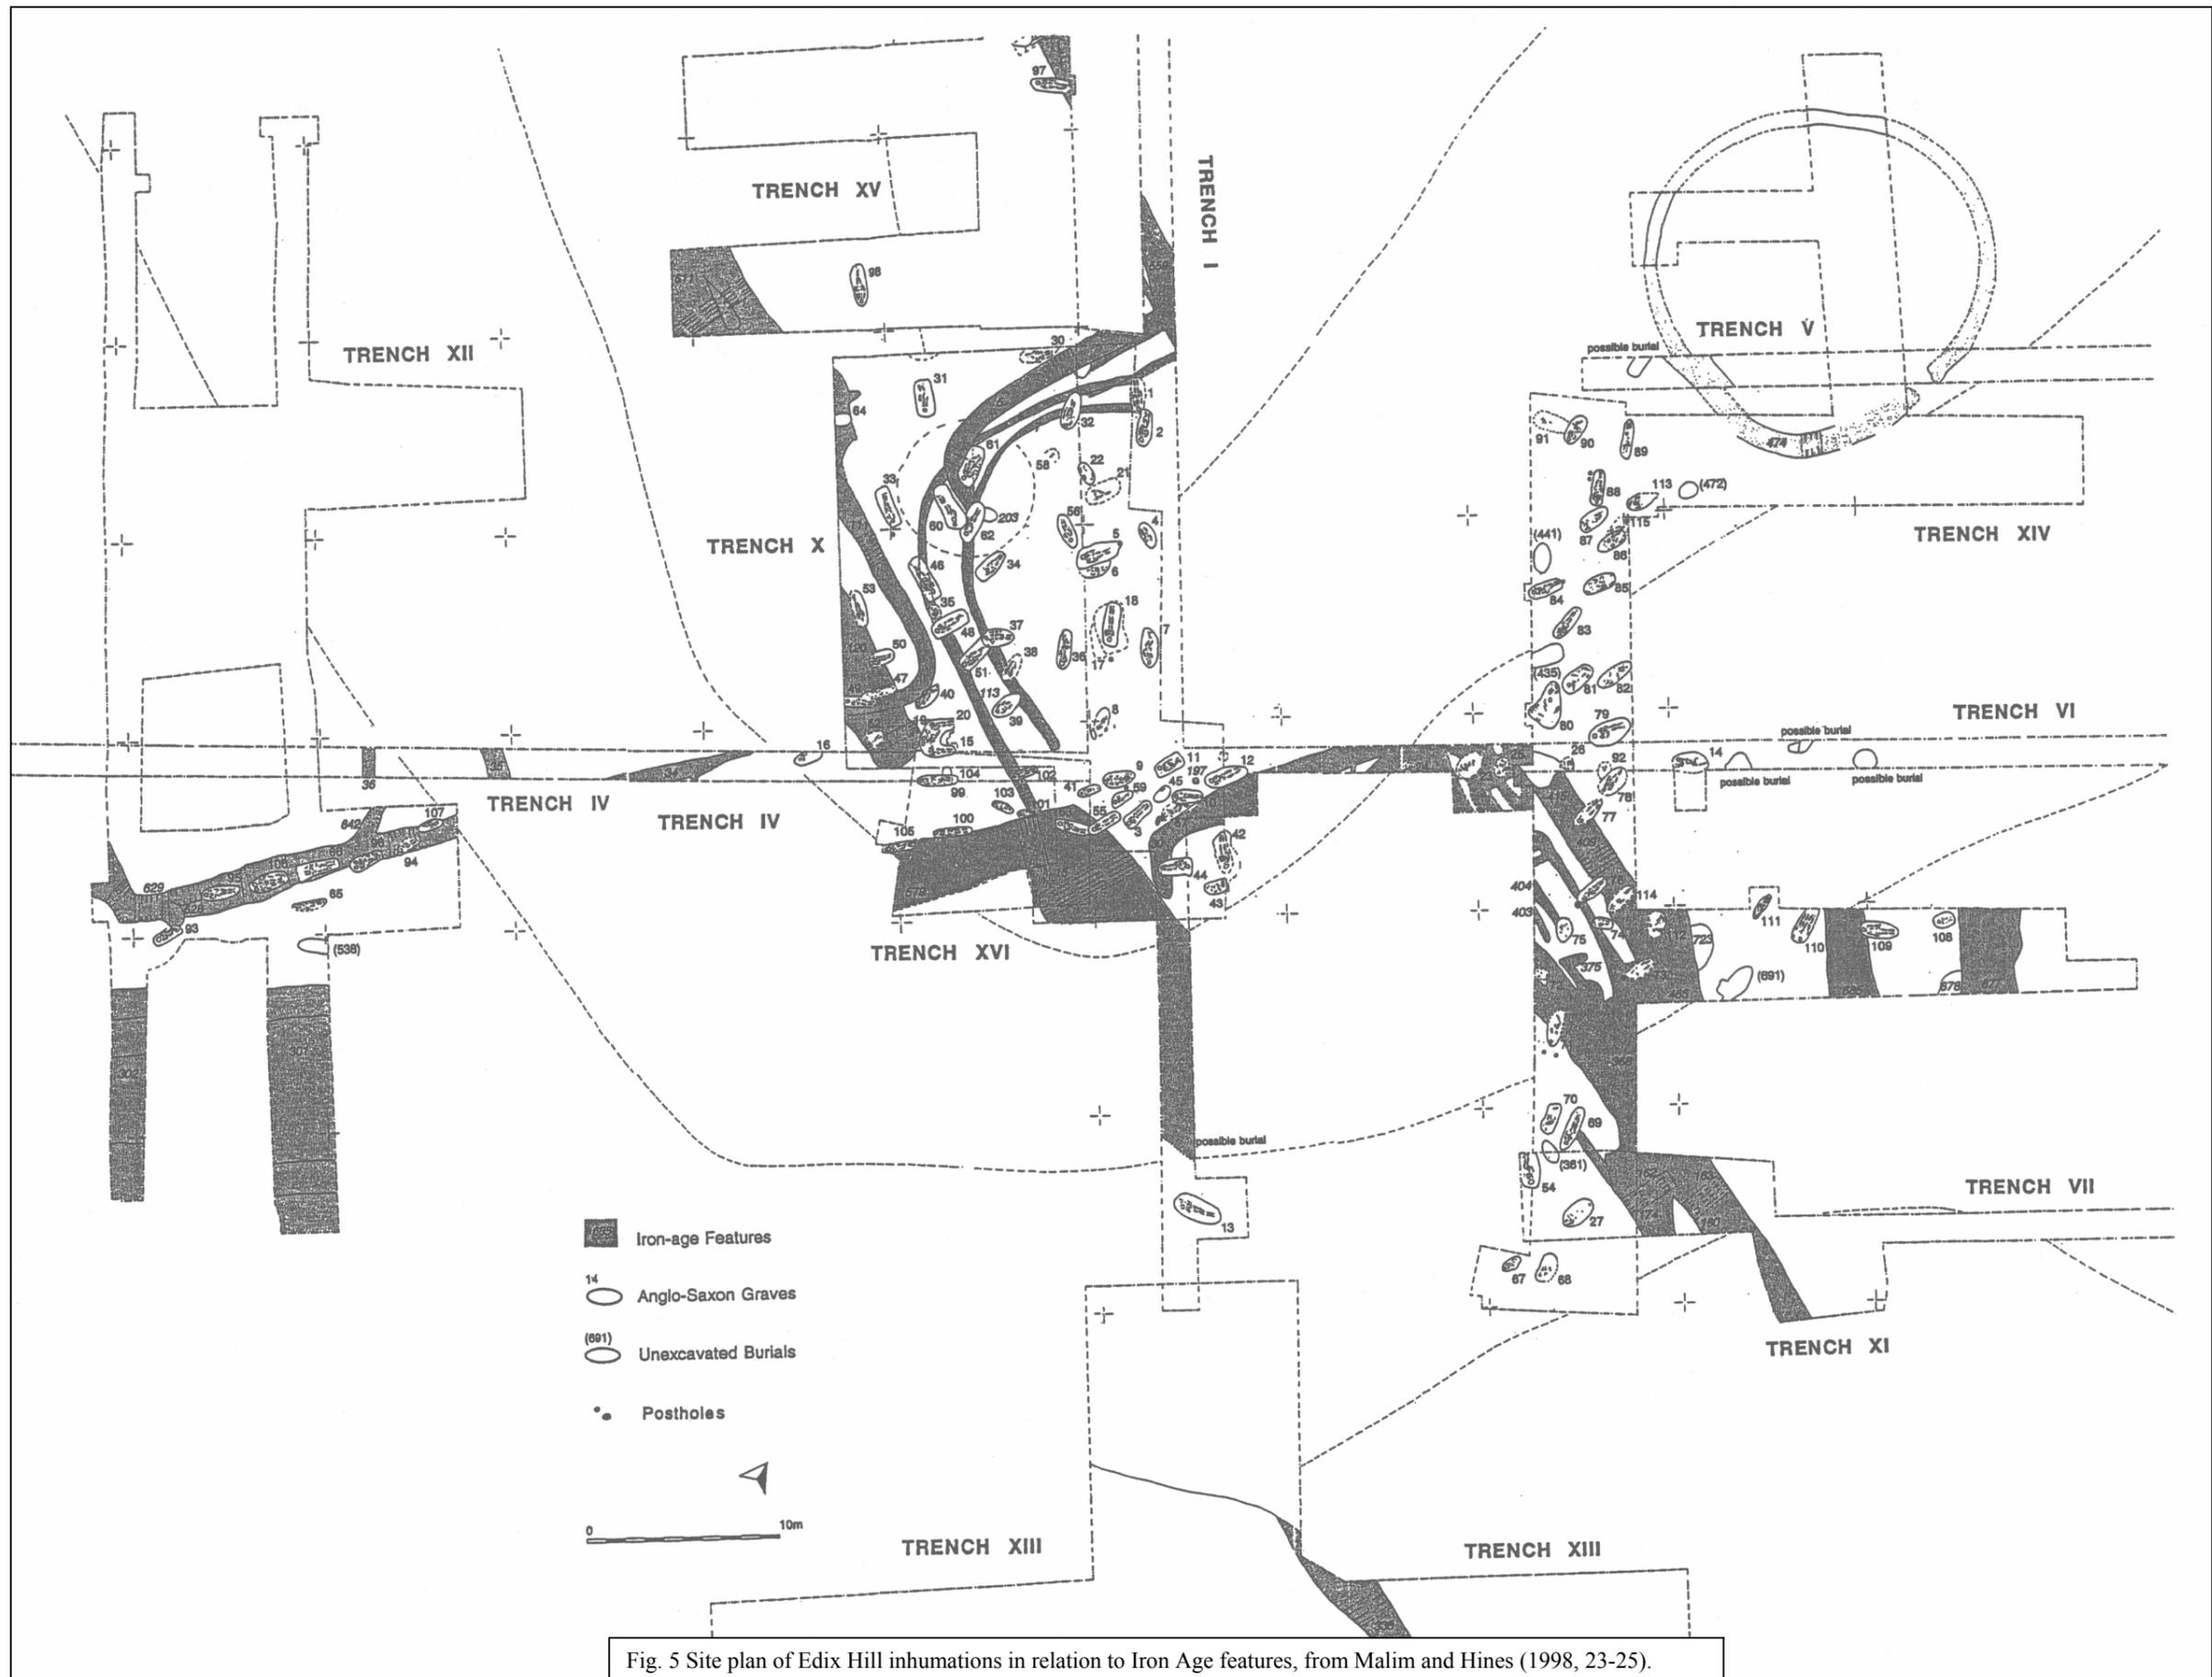

Fig. 5 Site plan of Edix Hill inhumations in relation to Iron Age features, from Malim and Hines (1998, 23-25). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Tim Malim and the Council for British Archaeology)

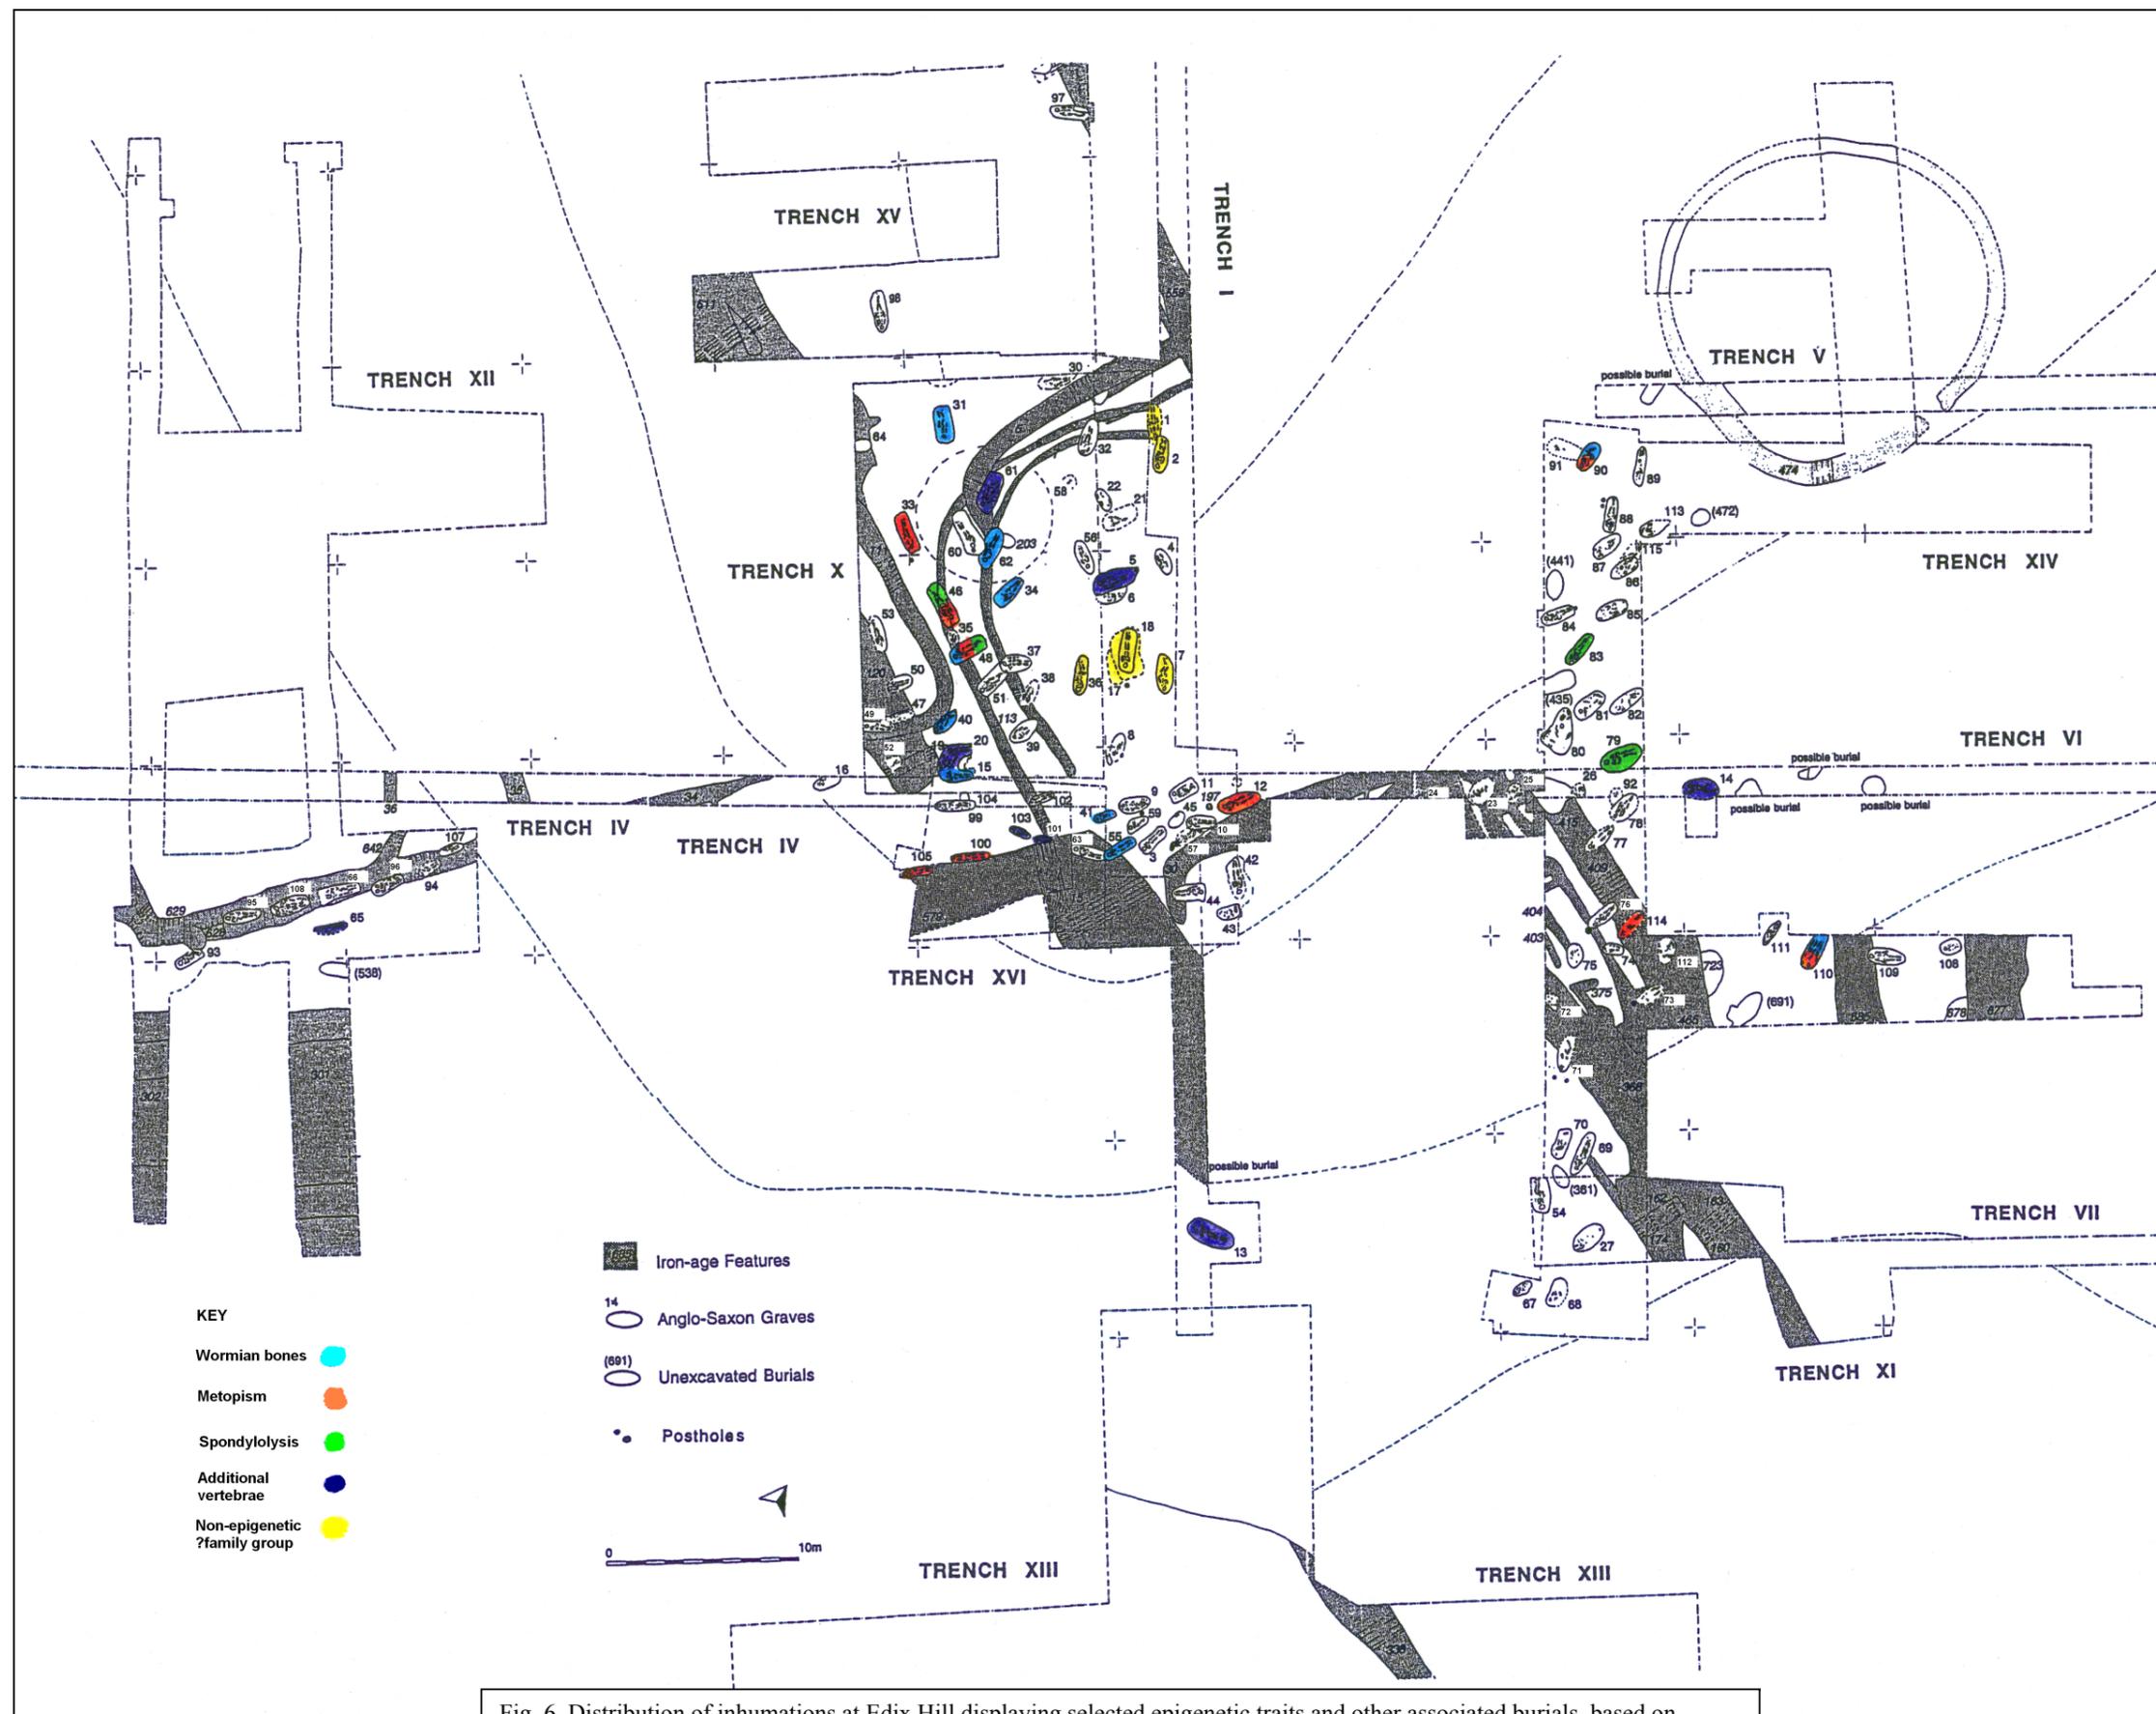

Fig. 6 Distribution of inhumations at Edix Hill displaying selected epigenetic traits and other associated burials, based on Malim and Hines (1998, 23-25). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Tim Malim and the Council for British Archaeology)

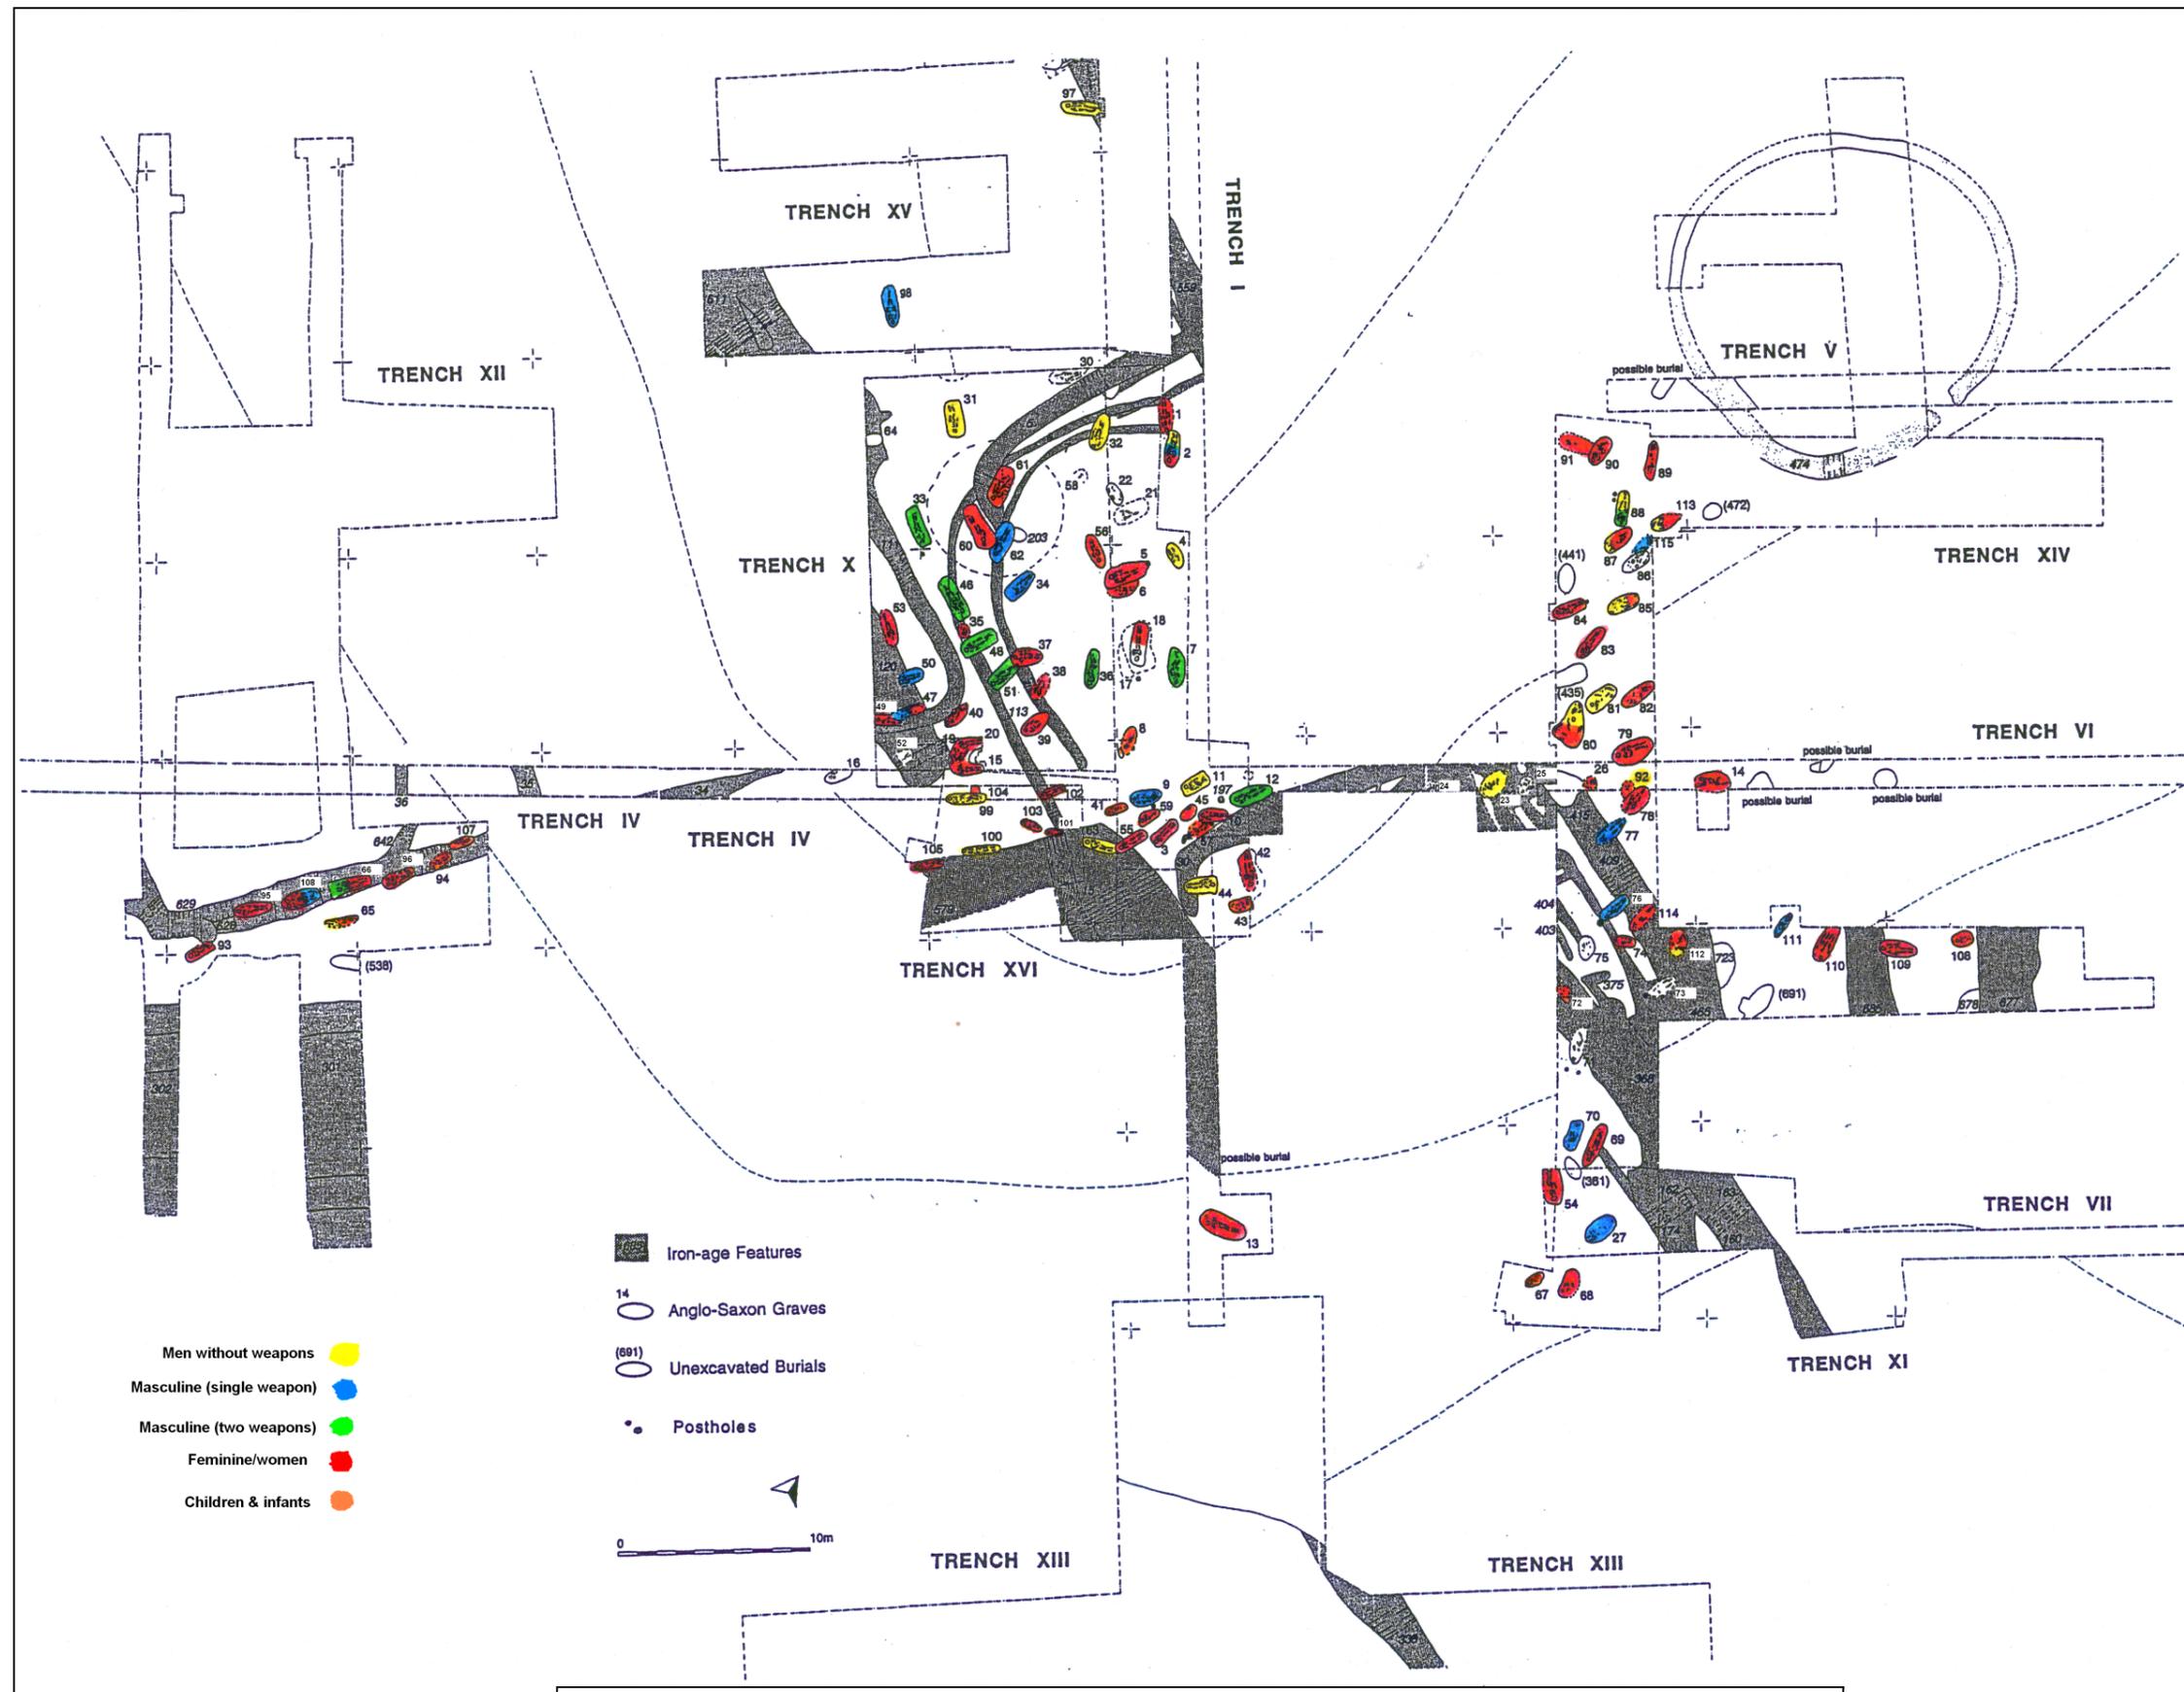

Fig. 7 Distribution of masculine, feminine and immature inhumations at Edix Hill, based on Malim and Hines (1998, 23-25). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Tim Malim and the Council for British Archaeology)

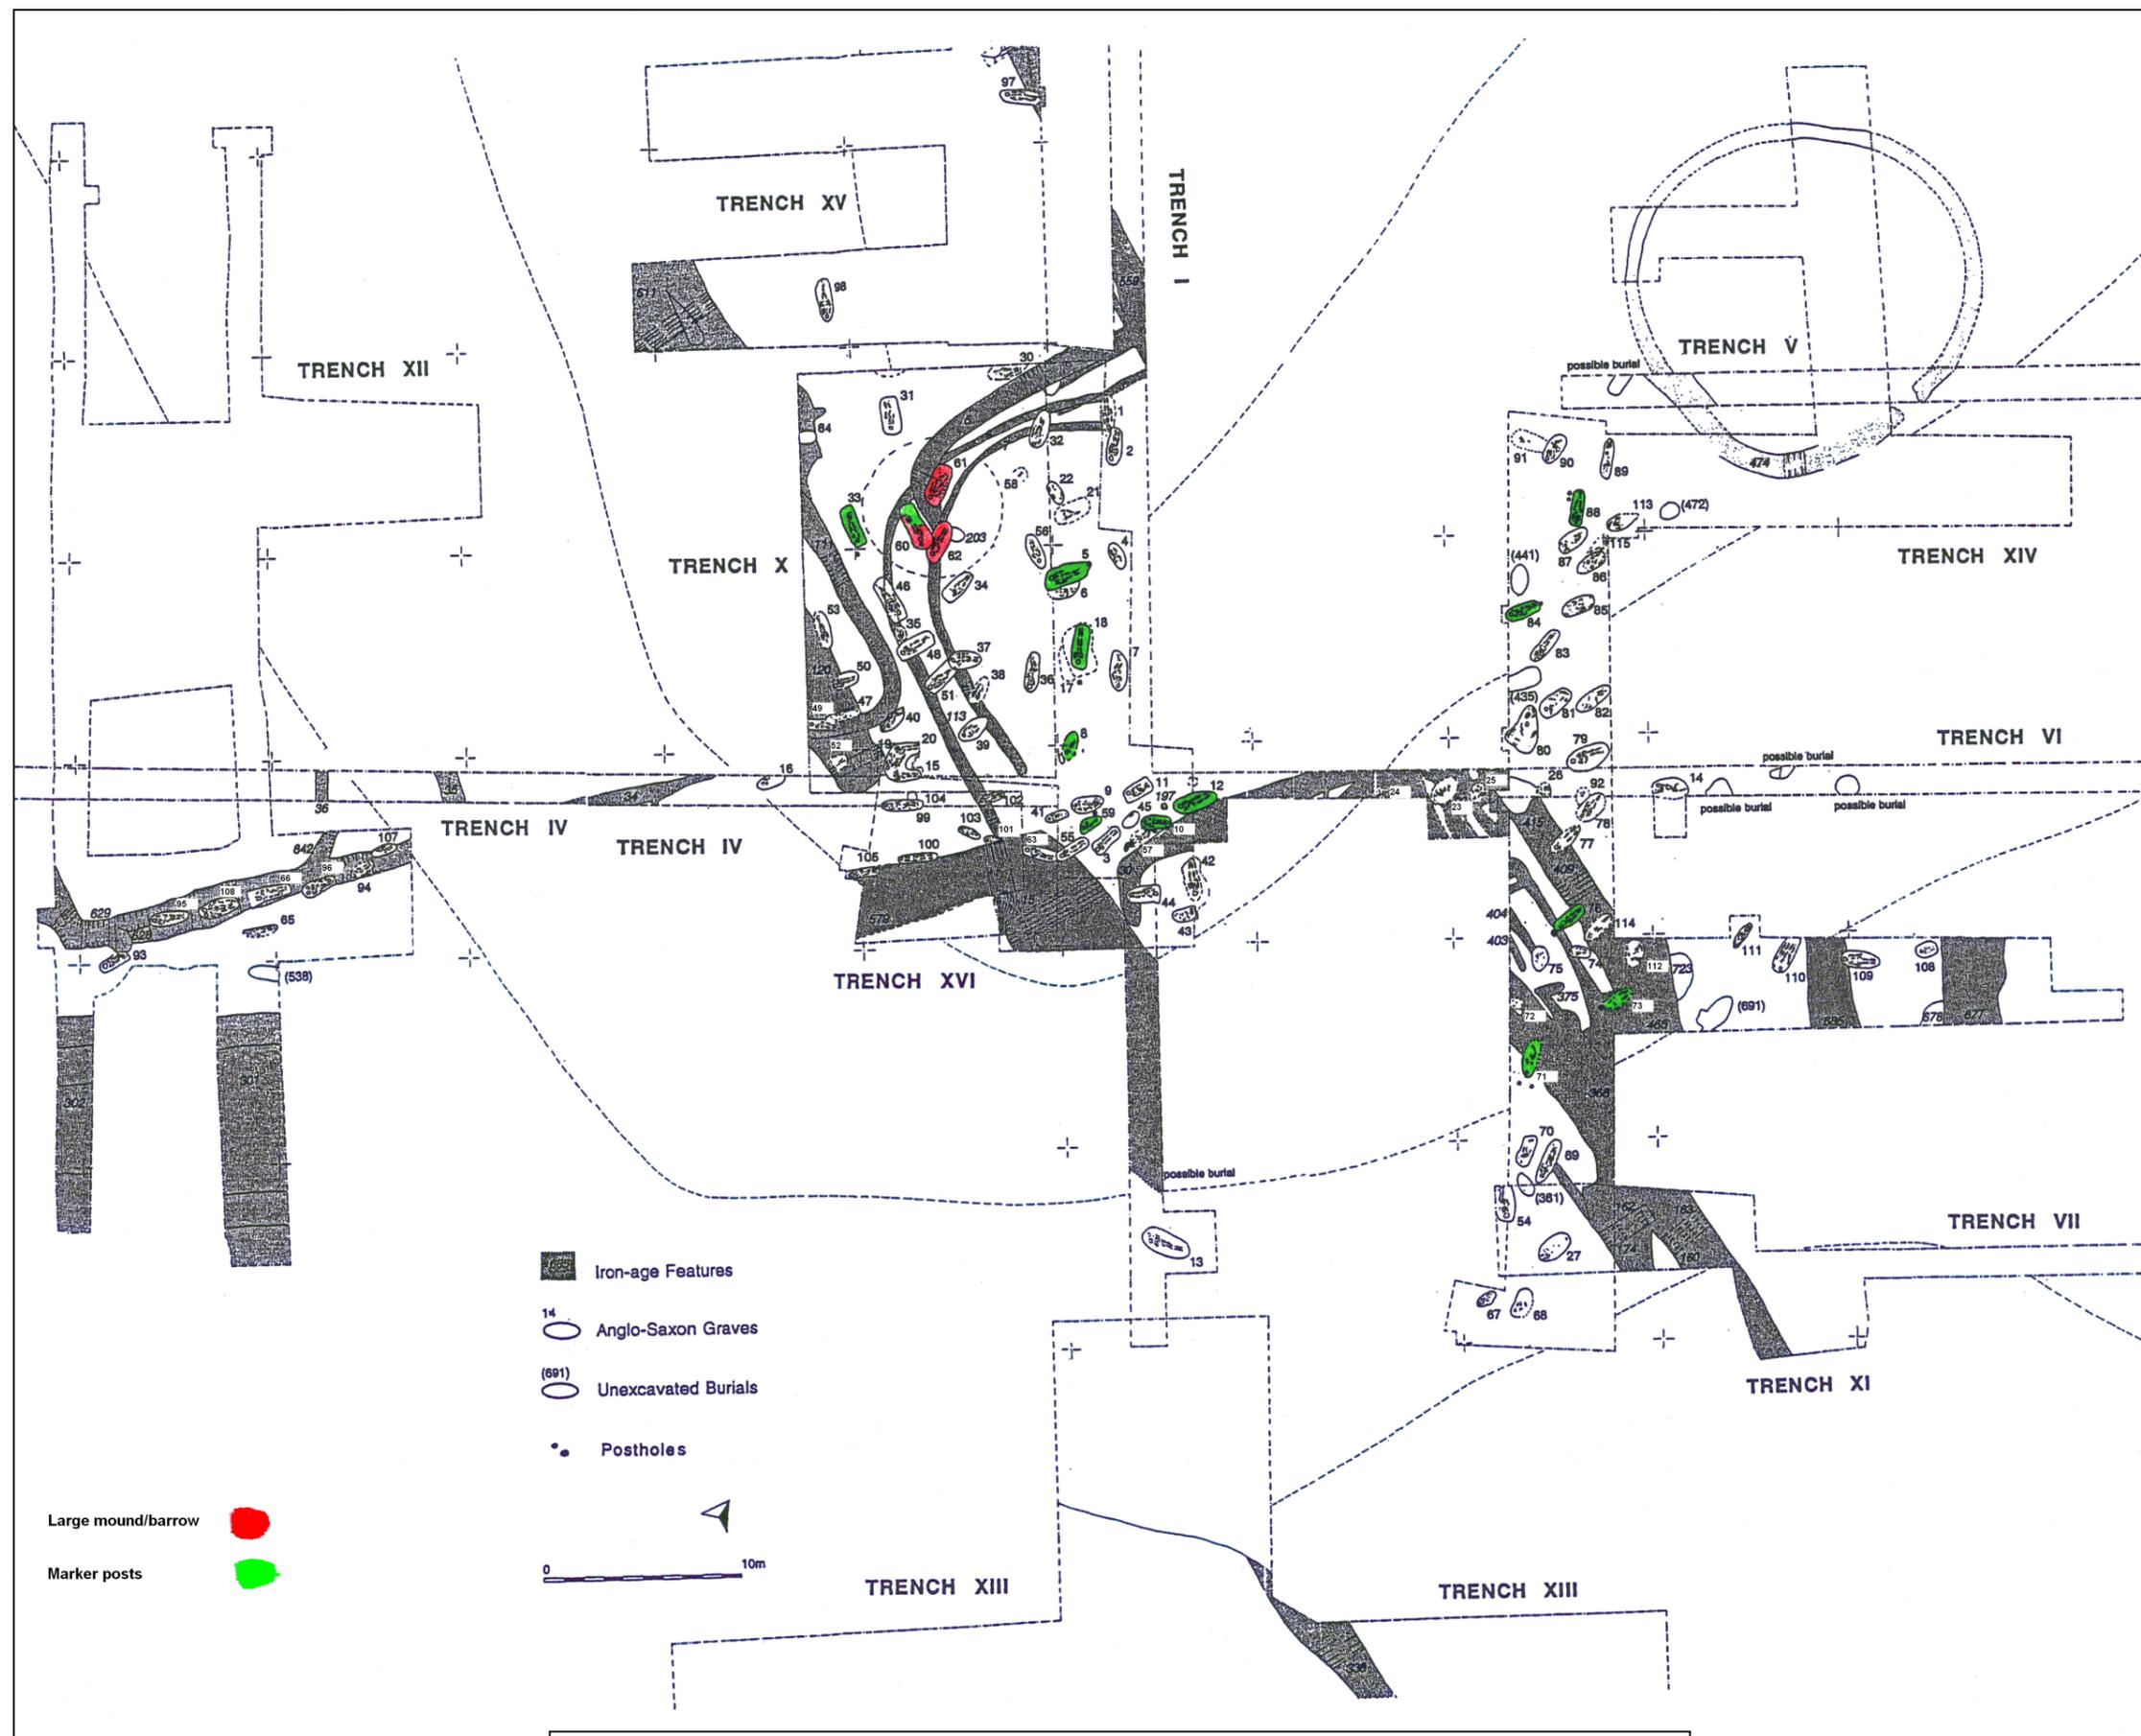

Fig. 10 Distribution of graves with above-ground markers at Edix Hill, based on Malim and Hines (1998, 23-25). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Tim Malim and the Council for British Archaeology)

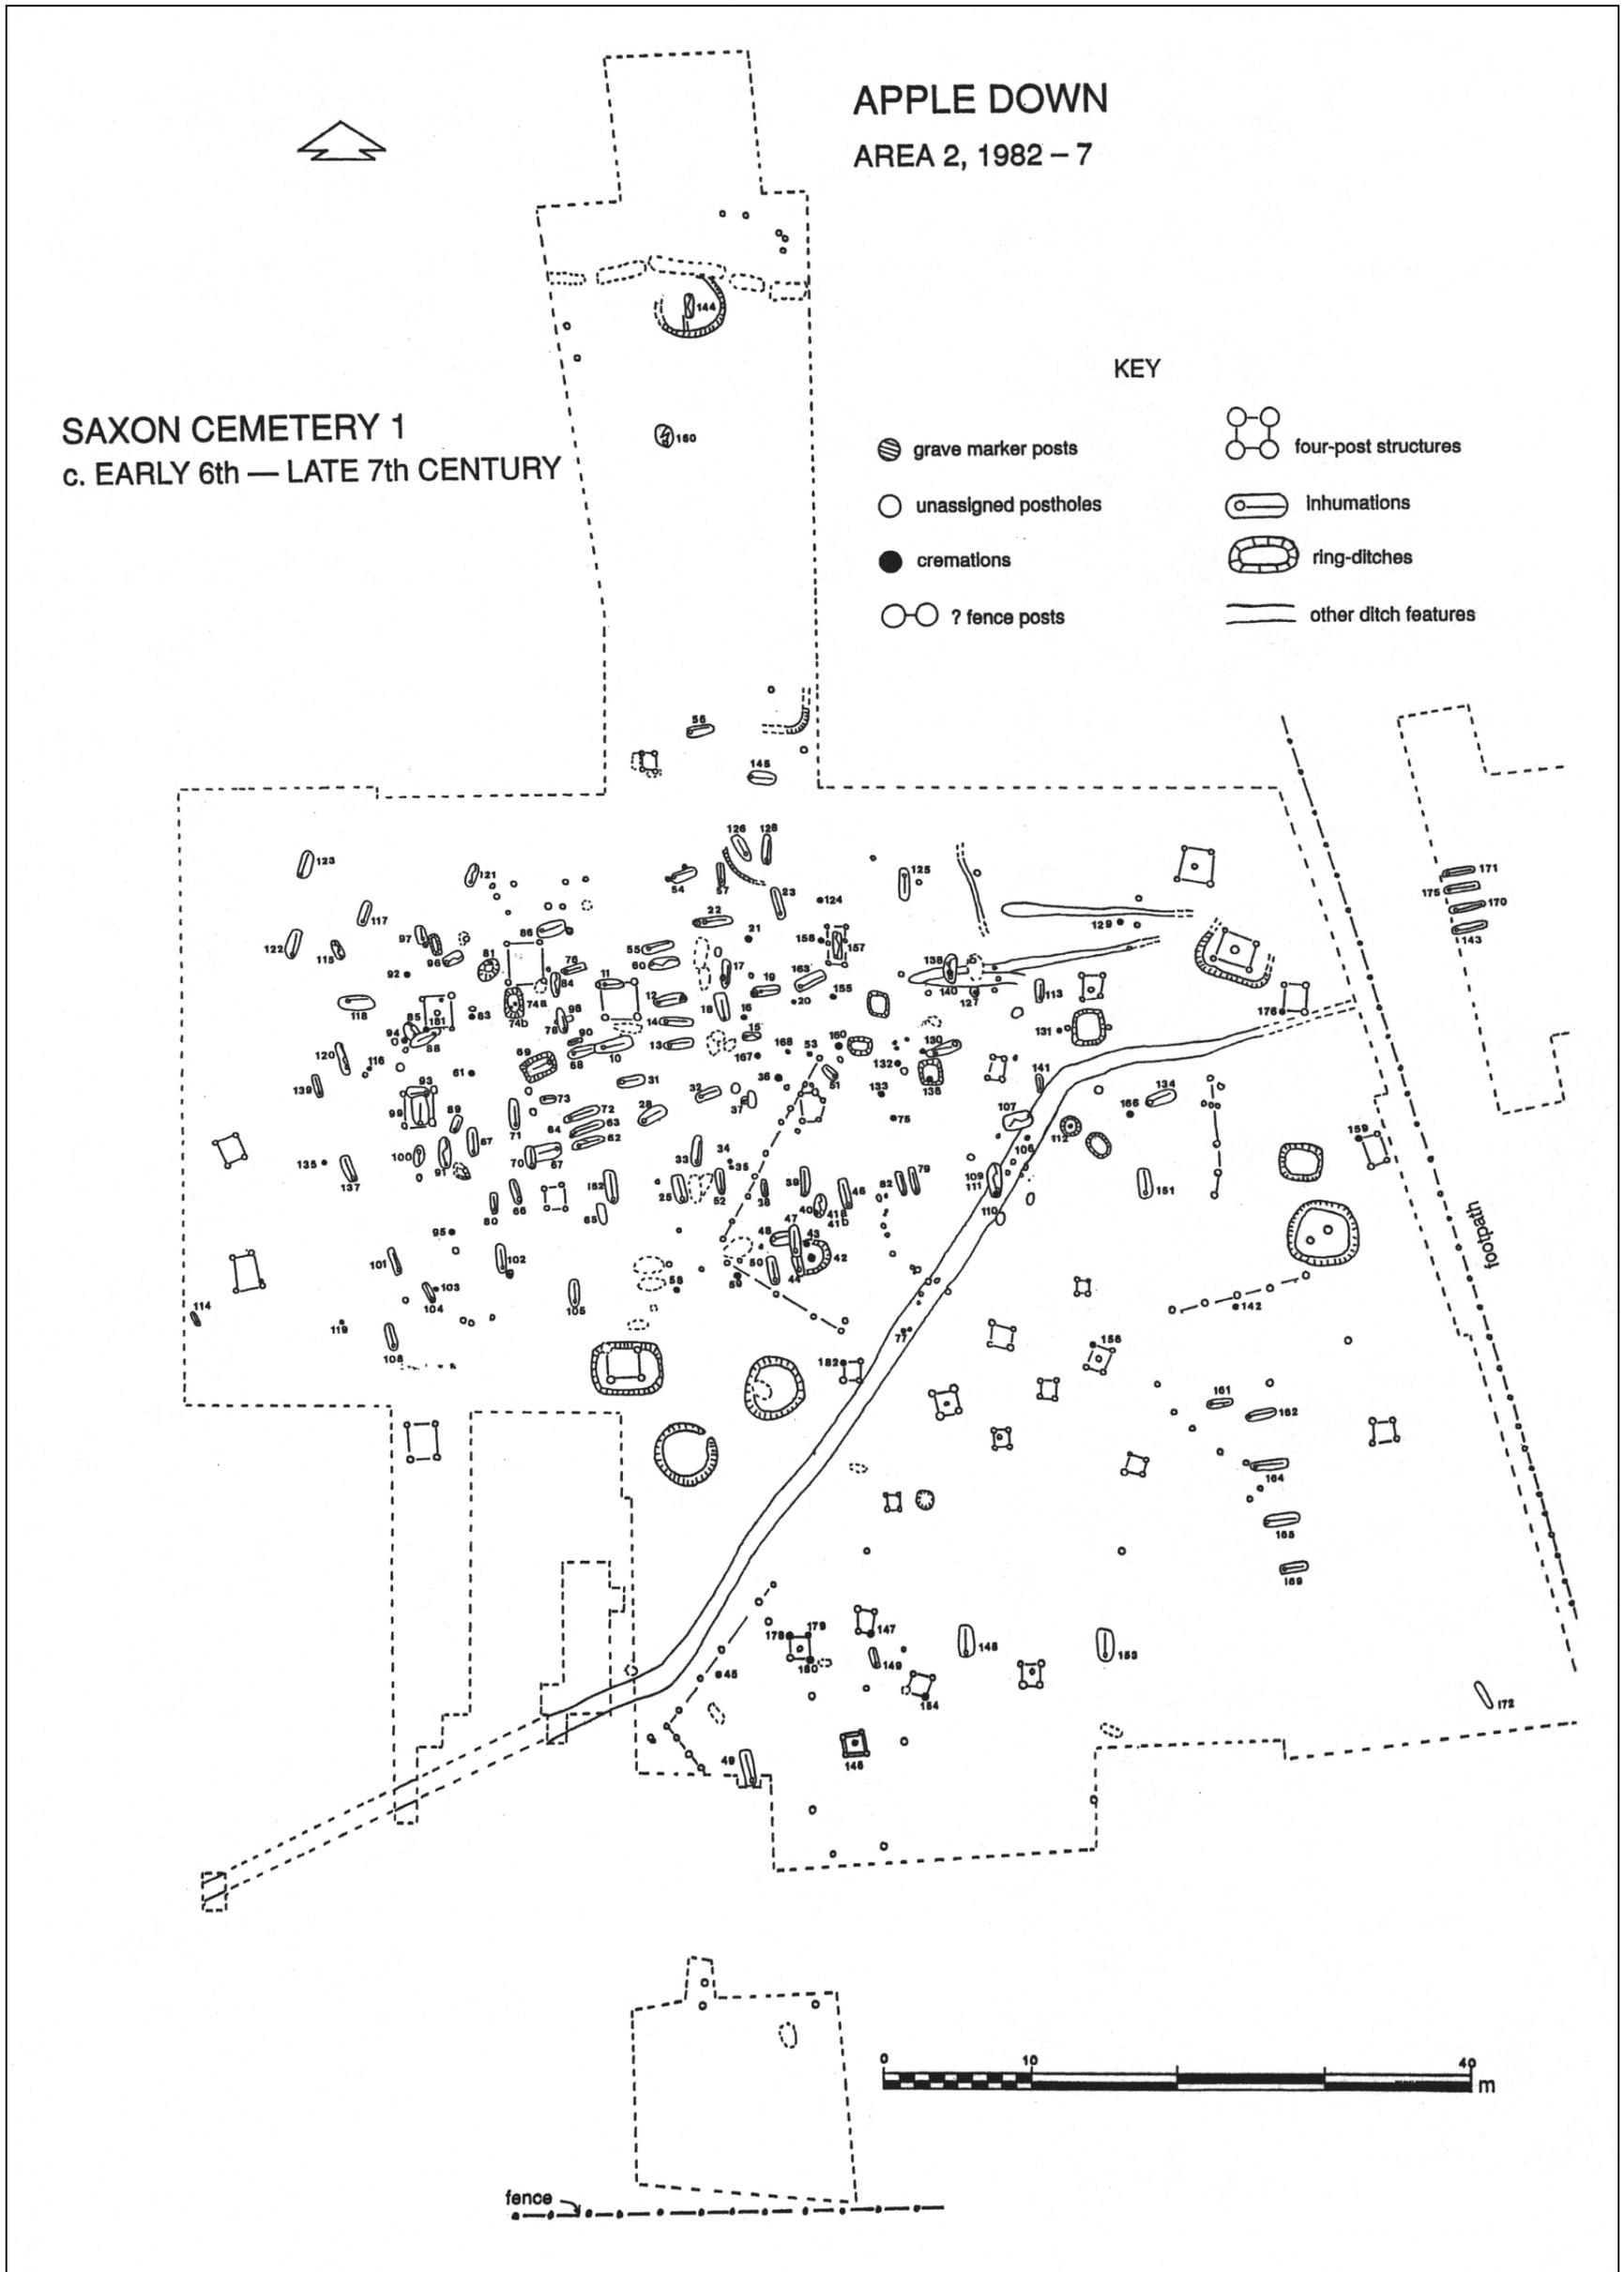

Fig. 12 Site plan of cemetery 1 at Apple Down, from Down and Welch (1990, fig. 2.4). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Martin Welch and Phillimore www.phillimore.co.uk)

Fig. 13 Site plan of cemetery 1 at Apple Down, showing dates of graves (where known), based on Down and Welch (1990, fig. 2.4). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Martin Welch and Phillimore www.phillimore.co.uk)

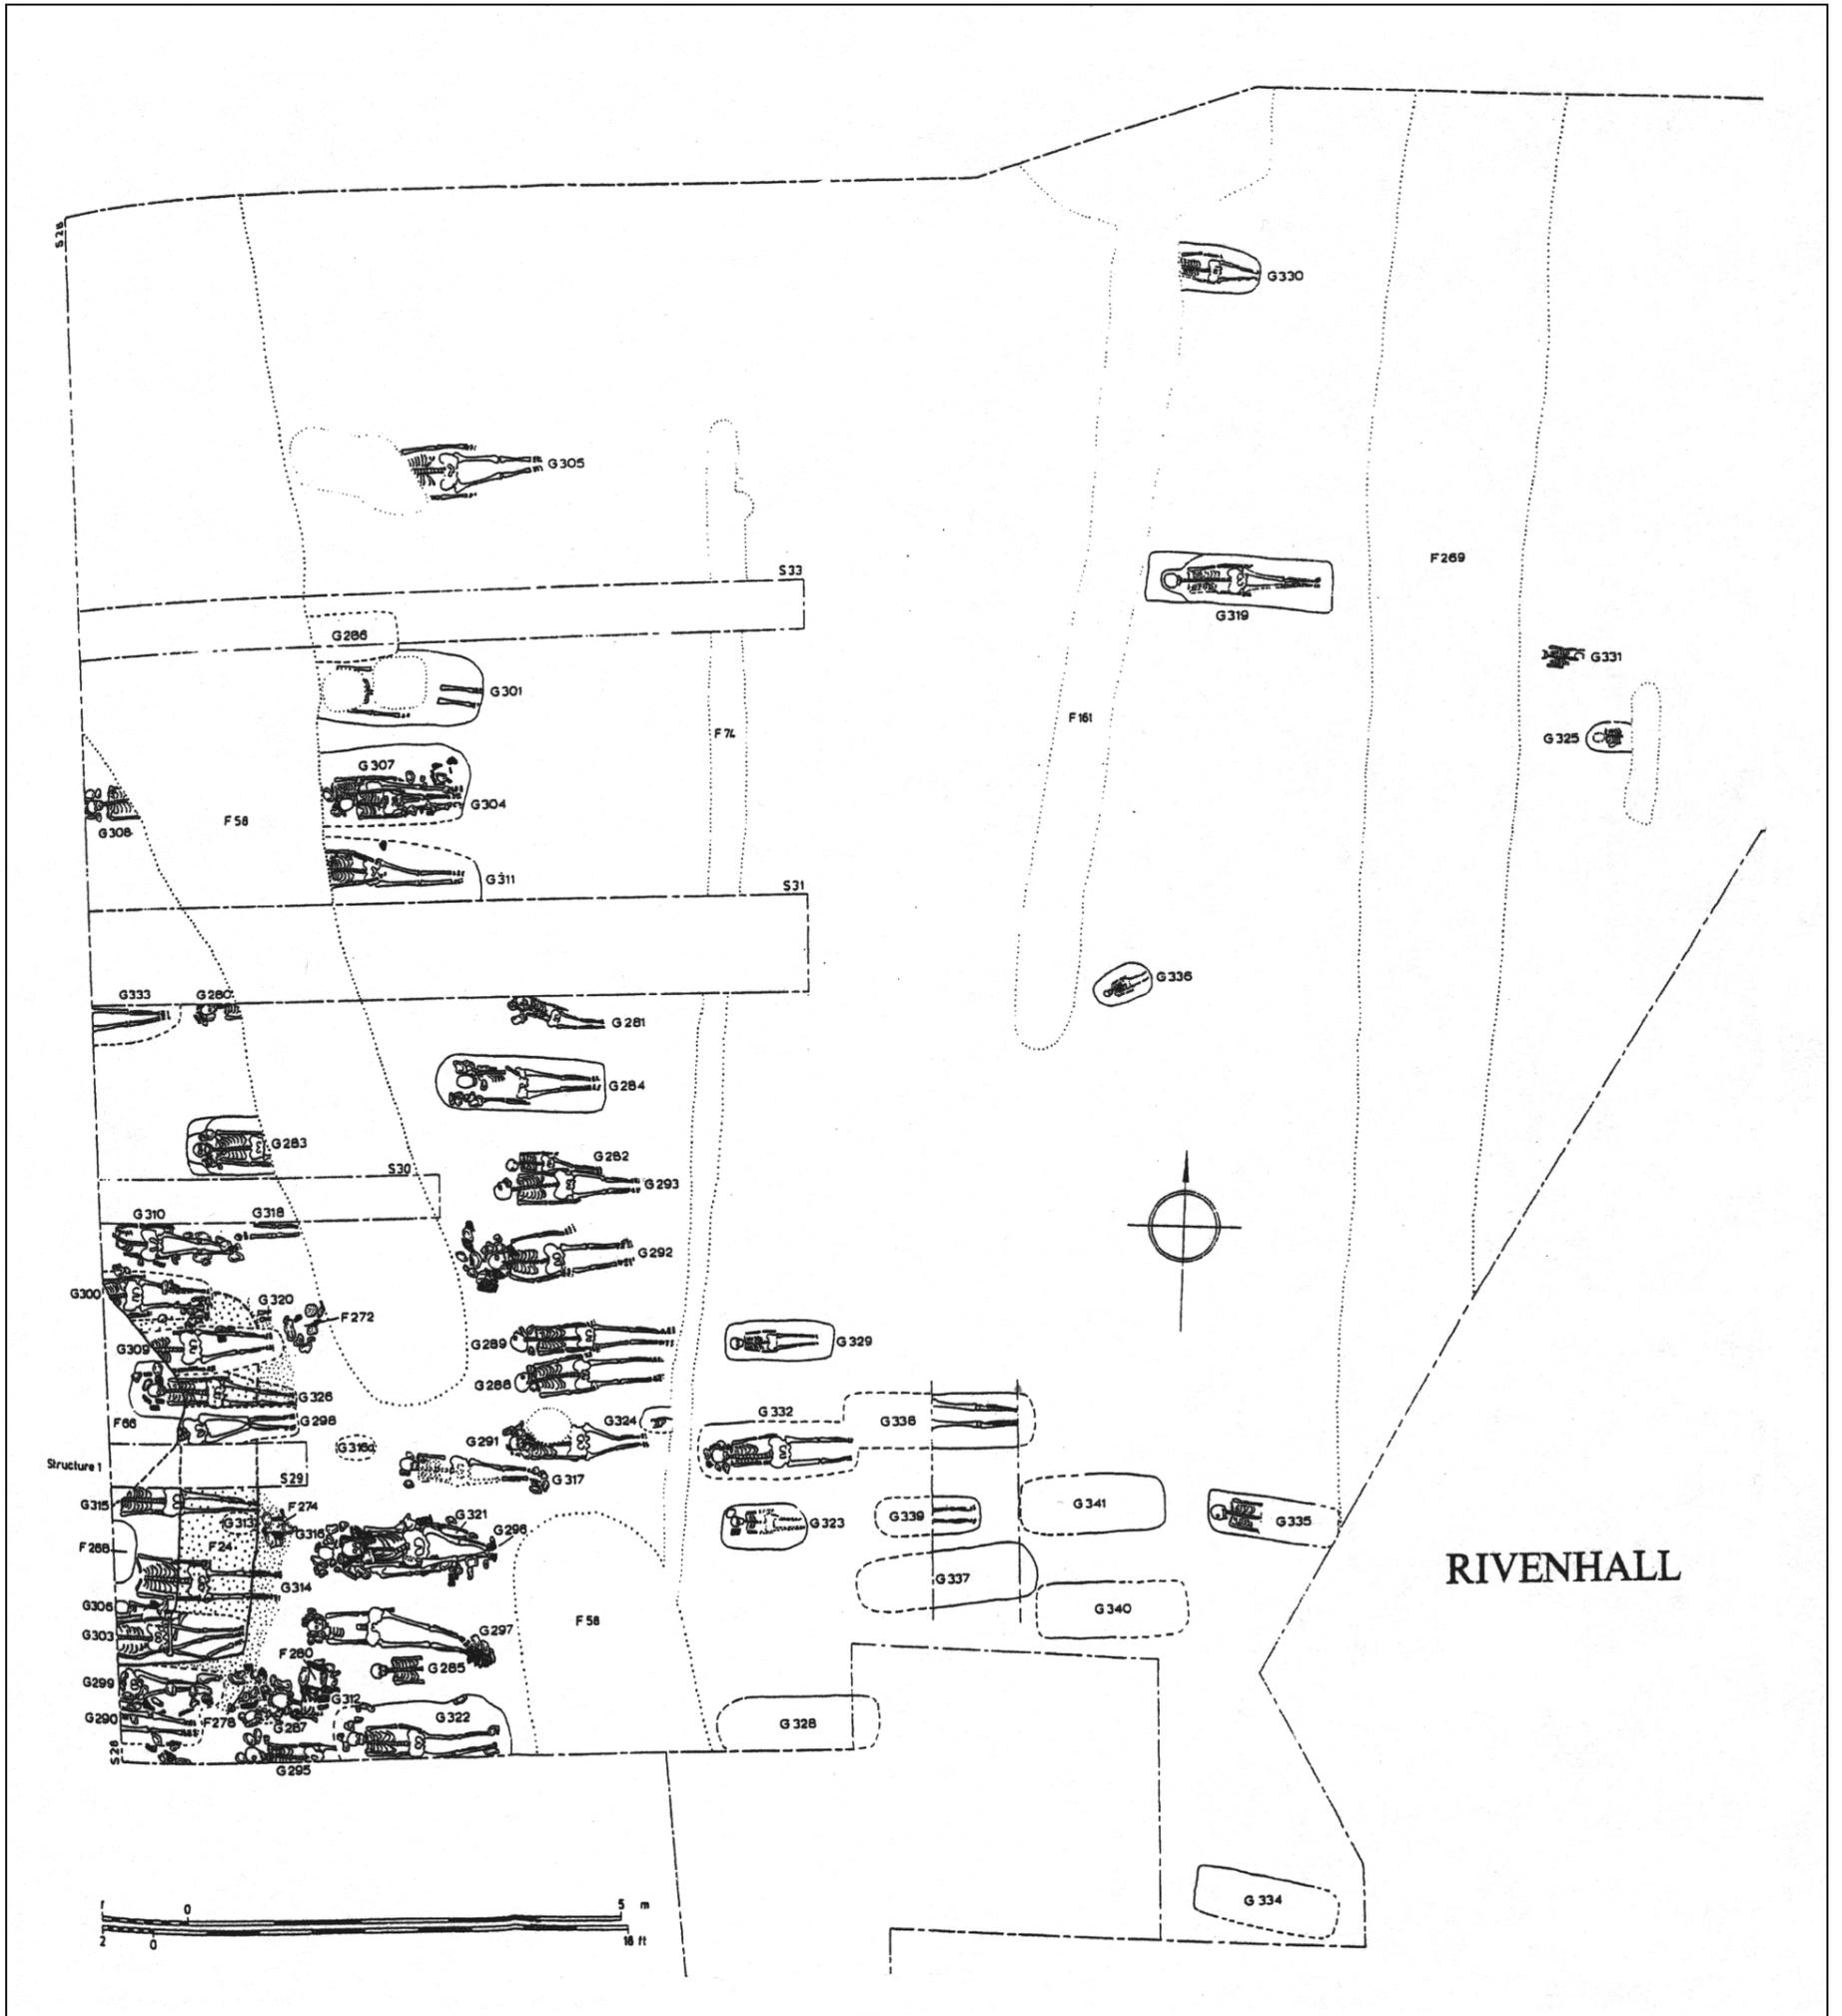

Fig. 15 Site plan of cemetery 1 at Rivenhall, from Rodwell and Rodwell (1985, fig. 57). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Warwick Rodwell and the Council for British Archaeology)

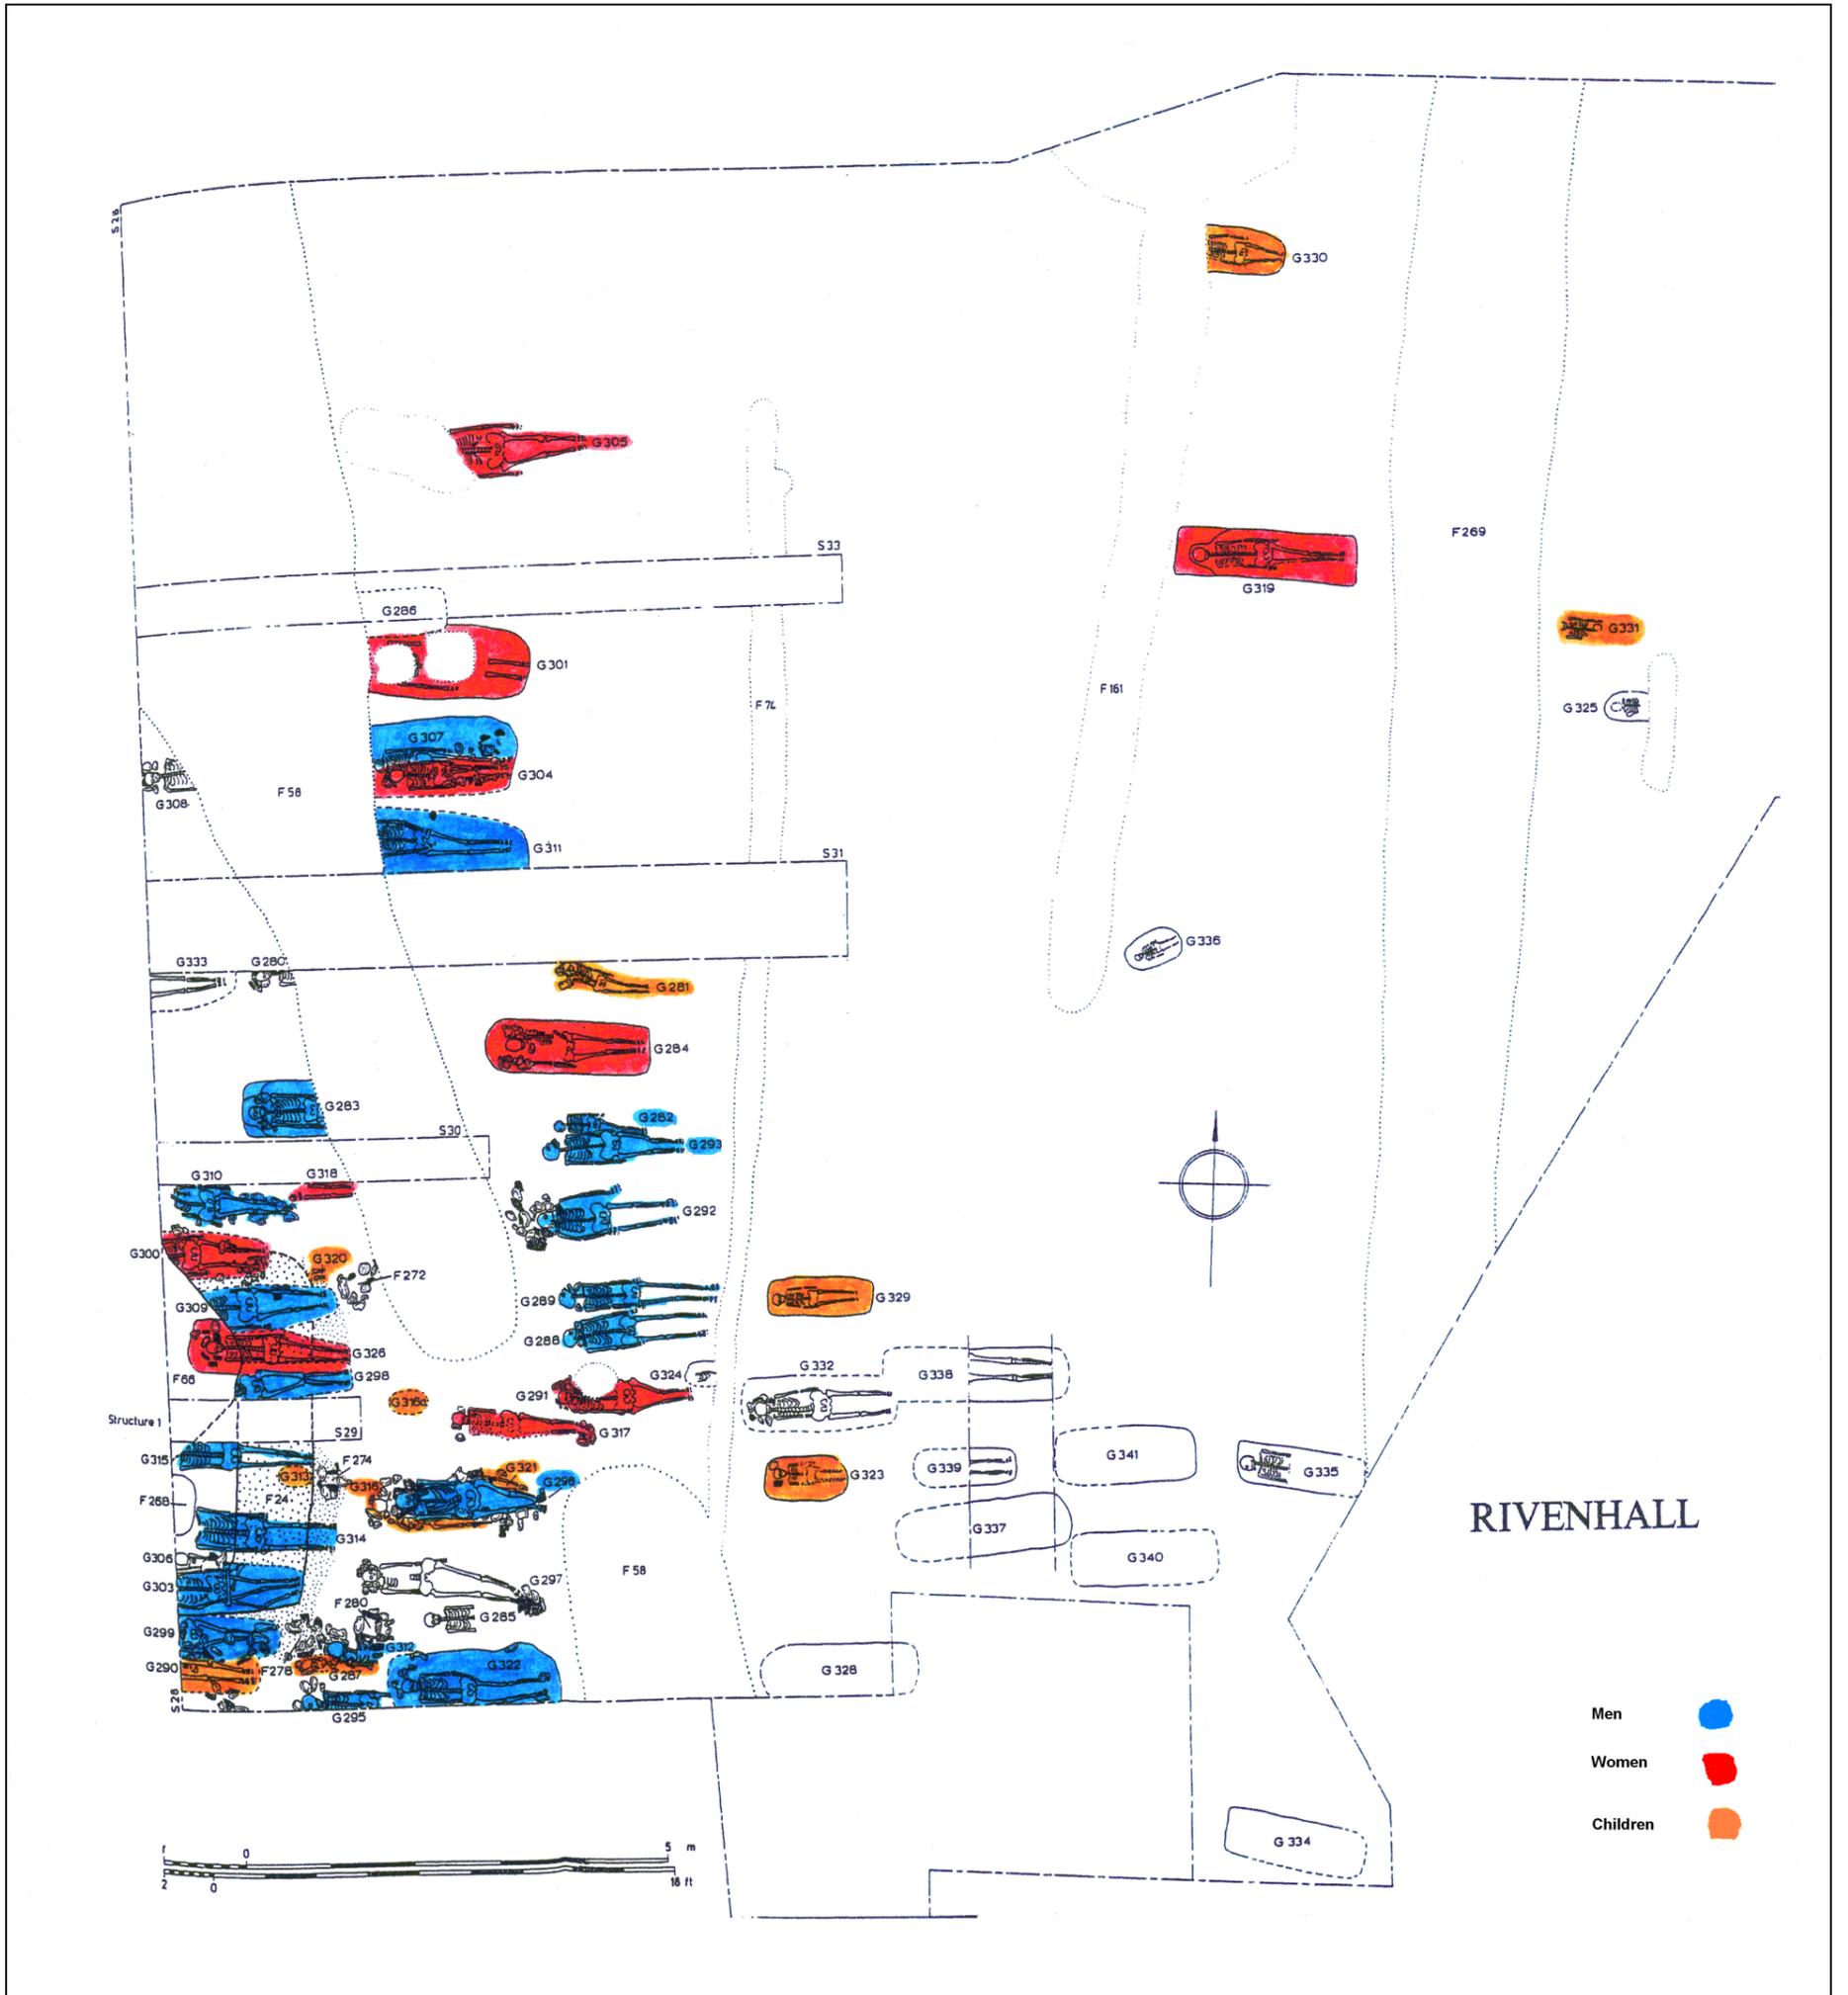

Fig. 17 Distribution of men, women and children at Rivenhall cemetery 1, based on Rodwell and Rodwell (1985, fig. 57). (Reproduced with the kind permission of Warwick Rodwell and the Council for British Archaeology)