Foreword.....	x
1. Introduction.....	1
1.1 Aims of the study .....	1
1.2 Chronological and biological framing of Upper Pleistocene humans, and their socio-economic behaviour .....	3
1.3 Spatial framework of the study .....	7
1.4 History of research and archaeological data on the Palaeolithic in Serbia .....	7
2. Theoretical Framework and Hypotheses.....	12
2.1 Ecological niche concept.....	12
2.2 Foraging theories.....	13
2.3 Hypotheses .....	14
3. Materials and Methods.....	16
3.1 The sites .....	16
3.2 Methodology of zooarchaeological analysis.....	19
3.2.1 Taxonomic determination, skeletal element determination and quantification of remains .....	20
3.2.2 Taphonomic analysis of the remains .....	21
3.2.3 Ageing of different mammalian species and age structure .....	23
3.3 Spatial distributions and catchments.....	24
3.4 Behaviour of wolves, spotted hyenas, lions, and bears.....	24
4. Results.....	28
4.1 Pešturina.....	28
4.1.1 Taxonomic composition .....	28
4.1.2 Representation of skeletal elements .....	30
4.1.3 Taphonomic analysis .....	30
4.1.4 Age structures.....	45
4.1.5 Spatial distribution .....	45
4.2 The Hadži-Prodanova cave .....	45
4.2.1 Taxonomic composition .....	47
4.2.2 Representation of skeletal elements .....	49
4.2.3 Taphonomic analysis .....	50
4.2.4 Age structure.....	54
4.2.5 Spatial distribution .....	54
4.3 The Smolučka cave .....	54
4.3.1 Taxonomic representation .....	54
4.3.2 Representation of skeletal elements .....	55
4.3.3 Taphonomic analysis .....	55
4.3.4 Age structures.....	56
5. Discussion.....	66
5.1 Ecology of humans and carnivores during the Late Middle Palaeolithic and Gravettian in the Central Balkans ..	66
5.2 Human and carnivore subsistence strategies of the Middle Palaeolithic and Gravettian of the Central Balkans...	72
5.3 Late Neanderthal and Gravettian settlement strategies in the Central Balkans .....	77
6. Conclusion .....	84
