

Contents

List of Figures	xi
List of Tables	xv
Abstract	xix
1. Introduction	1
1.1. Research questions	5
1.2. Book organization	5
Part I Framework	7
2. Theory and Methods	9
2.1. Key Definitions	9
2.1.1. Economy	9
2.1.2. Household	22
2.1.3. City and urbanism	25
2.2. Theory and methods	27
2.2.1. Studying socio-economic inequality	27
2.2.2. Identifying market exchange	30
2.2.3. Studying socio-political and economic power structures	36
2.3. Methodological tools	44
2.3.1. Geographic Information Systems (GIS)	44
2.3.2. Social network analysis (SNA)	45
2.3.3. Portable X-ray fluorescence (pXRF)	47
3. Uxul: The Site and its Data	51
3.1. History of research	53
3.2. History and affiliation	56
3.3. Uxul's spatial and archaeological evidence	58
3.3.1. Maps	58
3.3.2. Artifacts and databases	58
3.3.3. Excavation reports	60
3.4. Methodological discussion: approaching the data	60
3.4.1. Household identification	60
3.4.2. Analyzing Uxul's artifact data	62
3.5. Presentation of the ten extensively excavated households	69
3.5.1. Group Ak'	69
3.5.2. Group Baak	73
3.5.3. Group G	75
3.5.4. Group K	80
3.5.5. Group K'áak'	86
3.5.6. Group M	89
3.5.7. Group Ma'ax	93
3.5.8. Group Pu'uk	96
3.5.9. Group Wob	99
3.5.10. Group Ya'ab	102
Part II Analysis	109
4. Wealth Inequality and Stratification	111
4.1. Methodology and parameters	112
4.1.1. Methodological discussion	113
4.2. Wealth inequality in Uxul	114
4.2.1. Stratification	122
4.2.2. Economic distribution model	125

5. Settlement Organization: Household Location and Mobility	129
5.1. Methodological discussion	129
5.2. Neighborhoods in Uxul	131
5.2.1. Neighborhood composition	135
5.2.2. Neighborhood chronology	136
5.3. Household visibility	137
5.3.1. Visibility and wealth	139
5.3.2. Household visibility patterns and neighborhoods	140
5.3.3. Discussion of household visibility	144
5.4. Mobility and social integration	144
5.4.1. Social integration and wealth	145
5.4.2. Social integration and neighborhoods	148
5.5. Mobility and access to resources	155
5.5.1. Mobility and water: access to the aguadas	155
5.5.2. Mobility and religion: access to religious services	162
5.5.3. Mobility and storage: access to chultunes	170
5.6. Discussion of household location and intra-site mobility in Uxul	177
5.6.1. Elites vs. commoners	177
5.6.2. Neighborhoods	178
5.6.3. Implications of the Uxul settlement organization	183
5.6.4. Mobility and access in ancient Uxul in a comparative perspective	186
6. Household Economy: Production and Consumption	189
6.1. Ceramics: consumption, chronology, and sources	189
6.1.1. Uxul ceramics	190
6.1.2. Chronology of the extensively excavated households	192
6.1.3. Late Preclassic ceramics	193
6.1.4. Early Classic ceramics	197
6.1.5. Late Classic ceramics	203
6.1.6. Terminal Classic ceramics	223
6.1.7. Discussion of the distribution of ceramics in Uxul	228
6.2. Obsidian: consumption, production, and sources	230
6.2.1. Obsidian in Uxul	231
6.2.2. Sourcing the obsidian of Uxul: chemical analysis using pXRF	234
6.2.3. Distribution of obsidian sources in Uxul	238
6.2.4. Uxul obsidian and the long-distance exchange network	242
6.2.5. Discussion of the distribution of obsidian in Uxul	245
6.3. Greenstone: production and consumption	246
6.3.1. Greenstone in Uxul	247
6.3.2. Greenstone artifact production: the Ya'ab workshop	250
6.4. Shell: production and consumption	253
6.4.1. Shell in Uxul	253
6.4.2. Shell artifact production: the Ya'ab workshop	257
6.5. Textile: production	258
6.5.1. Malacates in Uxul	260
6.5.2. Additional textile production implements	265
6.5.3. Discussion of the organization of textile production in Uxul	270
6.6. Ceremonial services in household contexts: consumption, production, and services	271
6.6.1. Household ceremonial activities in Uxul	273
6.6.2. Discussion of ceremonial practices as specialized household services in Uxul	280
6.7. Thin-walled flared clay earspools: production and consumption	282
6.7.1. Thin-walled earspools in Uxul	282
6.7.2. Earspool production: the Ma'ax production site	282
6.8. Paper: production	285
6.9. Chert: production and consumption	287
Part III Discussion and Conclusions	289
7. Discussion of the Ancient Uxul Economy	291
7.1. Wealth inequality and its implications	291

7.2. The existence of a middle class	293
7.3. Settlement organization and its implications	295
7.4. Consumption patterns	299
7.5. Production and specialization	302
7.6. Uxul in the wider economic network	306
7.7. Uxul in a comparative perspective	309
7.8. Chronology and development of the Uxul economy	310
8. Conclusions	313
8.1. Market exchange	313
8.2. Economy and political organization	314
8.3. Economic independence of Uxul	316
8.4. Concluding remarks	316
Bibliography	319

The Appendices are available at the following DOIs:

Appendix 1: List of all identified households and their characteristics - <https://doi.org/10.30861/9781407359151.app1>

Appendix 2: Walking times from each source household group to each other household group (in seconds) - <https://doi.org/10.30861/9781407359151.app2>

Appendix 3: Walking times from each household to various resource in Uxul - <https://doi.org/10.30861/9781407359151.app3>

Appendix 4: Results of pXRF measurements on Uxul ceramic samples - <https://doi.org/10.30861/9781407359151.app4>

Appendix 5: Results of pXRF measurements on Uxul obsidian samples - <https://doi.org/10.30861/9781407359151.app5>